LIMA London

LIMA London opened in the heart of Fitzrovia in 2012 as a window to Peru's vibrant culinary scene and was the first Peruvian restaurant to win the acclaimed star from Michelin. Our kitchen is led by head chef Sergio Arocas and inspired by his food pilgrimages around Peru. The dishes combine ingredients native to South America with seasonal produce found in the British Isles – all showcasing a modern taste of Peru's capital.

Address: 14 Garrick Street, London WC2E 9BJ

Visit: <https://www.limalondon.com/lima-at-home>

Floral by LIMA

Floral by LIMA is the younger sibling to its award-winning sister restaurant LIMA London and is located in the heart of Covent Garden. Our kitchen, led by Head Chef Adrian Sanchez, offers a contemporary Peruvian menu designed for sharing. In addition to the restaurant, the venue holds The Lost Alpaca, a fun and lively Latin American bar. We serve the best spirits and mixology the continent has to offer, all accompanied by Peruvian bar snacks and the sounds of Latin America.

Address: 31 Rathbone Place, London W1T 1JH

Nobu

Nobu London has been a Mayfair institution since 1997, serving exceptional Japanese cuisine with Peruvian touches. Inspired by his father's trips to South America, celebrity chef and founder Nobuyuki Matsuhisa lived and worked in Peru for several years before starting his now global restaurant and hotel empire. Guests can enjoy iconic Nobu dishes such as Black Cod Miso and Yellowtail Jalapeno, as well as Japanese Wagyu Beef with Anticucho Sauce.

Address: 19 Old Park Lane, London W1K 1LB

Ayllu

Ayllu is a Peruvian-Japanese fusion restaurant tucked away beneath the hustle and bustle of Paddington Central, W2 6EY. The new Peruvian concept is built around the traditions of the Ayllu community of the Inca Empire. The Ayllu was a group of families that lived together, worked the land together and shared their belongings and mealtimes, just like a large family. Much like the Incan civilisation, Ayllu is about the coming together of friends and families and taking time to share an experience of great food and innovative cocktails with loved ones.
